At the Sheriff's office it was also said there was no record of such a matter.

Chief inspector Steers, of New York, said to an Kvzning Worker reporter that he was aware that Goldschmidt had been arrested in Montreal and of all the particulars of the alleged officase. He refused to state any of the details, but said that extradition papers were being prepared and one of his officers would go to Canada after the prisoner when the papers were completed.

Discharged in Court Through Lack of Evidence.

Three men, who the police say are "river speculators," were discharged by Justice Tighe, of the Butler Street Court, Brooklyn, this morning. They were Pallip Murphy, thirty-eight years old, of 178 Sackett street; Anthony Moran, forty-four years old, of 48 Hamilton avenue, and William Anderson thirty-one years old, of 44 Walcott street. They were arrested last night at the foot of Baltic street. Folicemen Brady and Rogers saw them coming off the pier with five boxes of the plate valued at $40 in their possession. The men claimed they had purchased the tin from a steamer down the bay. It was found that all marks by which the boxes could be identified had been removed.

The tin was turned over to the property clerk, and the men got an order for it when discharged.

Billy's New Mother-in-Law Learns Dr. Depew Presides and Absentees Send Contributions.

Three hundred members and guests of the New York Press Club unlished dinner at the Manhattan Beach Hotel just about the time this morning's newspapers went to press. The gathering was of special interest be-cause of the discussion of plans for the Press Club's proposed new building. Although it is new married man of four days. He was probably the largest and most infi organization of its kind, the New York Press Tub has no home that it can call its own and the proposition to provide not only a comfortable but a palatial abiding place; last night received a big impetus. Dr. Chauncey M. Depew presided over the post-prandial exercises, and fairly outshone all his previous efforts as a banquet orator He addressed his hearers as "fellow journalists," and claimed to be the mysterious per sonage alluded to reportorially as "the leader whose name cannot at present be pub lished. He dabbled diplomatically in politics, pro-nounced a beautiful enlogy on Cyrus W. Field, one of the club's honorary members, and wound up by indorsing the club's enter-prise in a manner that evoked his hearers and wound up by indorsing the calobs enterprise in a manner that evoked his hearers' hearty applause.

The President of the Club made "More Remarks, Explanatory," of the Club's efforts to unit a home and the way it was proposed to do it; Chartes O'C. Hennessy handled the "Question of Finance," and John W. Keller
culogized "The Chartiles of the Press Club."
John Friedrich told "What Our German Brother Thinks," and Charles J. Smith grappled with "Reciprocity."

Brother Thinks, "and Charles J. Smith grap-pled with "Hediprocity,"

But the speech of Major George-F. Williams caught the assemblage. It was a common-place reading of letters from invited guests unable to be present, but nearly all of them contained subscriptions to the building fund and some of them checks.

Dr. C. J. Perry was the first subscriber, and his gift was $1,000. Others who con-tributed like amounts were Robert Bonner, deerge W. Childs, Thomas A. Edison and R. H. Macy & Co.

The German Press Club, which will occupy H. Macy & Co.

The German Press Club, which will occupy a floor in the new building, through President Friedrich also offered aubstantial aid to the fund.

The site purchased for the new building cost $247.500, and the structure itself will increase the required fund to half a million dollars. ACCUSES POLICEMAN QUINN.

Tenth avenue and Thirty-second street, half a dozen yards away. Mrs. O'Donnell made a remark which caused Mrs. Duffy to laugh. Policeman Quine, she says, heard the laugh and turned around and walked up to the two women. Mrs. Duffy's story continues thus:

Mrs. Duffy's story continues thus:

"This policeman began by saying: 'What are you laughing at?' I told him I was not laughing at him. He then said: 'Pil teach you to laugh at me,' and grabbed me by the throat and forced me against the railing of the stoop. He choked me so hard that I could scarcely breathe.

"While he was thus maitreating me, I am told, his younger sister, who lives at 340 Tenth avenue, came by and told him not to strike me with his club. The policeman then strick me in the face, and the ring he wore cut my forchead.
